

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for cooling a fuel cell, which generates power by supplying air and a fuel gas, in which a cooling liquid is circulated between the fuel cell and a heat exchanger is disclosed. The cooling apparatus of the present invention separates the gas introduced into the cooling liquid, mixes the separated gas with the air supplied to or exhausted from the fuel cell, and then exhausts the gas.